LIST OF FISHERY ASSOCIATIONS IN THE UNITED STATES

By

LESLIE D. McMULLIN

This list includes only fishery associations of fishermen and vessel owners (which are not cooperatives) and associations of wholesale and retail dealers, processors, distributors, etc. The list was originally compiled in July 1947, and the latest revision was made in November 1965. It may not be complete because there is a constant change in associations as new ones are formed and old ones become dormant or dissolved. The Fish and Wildlife Service assumes no responsibility in supplying the list to inquirers.

In addition to this list of associations, Fishery Leaflet 588, List of Fishery Cooperatives in the United States is available. Fishery Leaflet 588 includes only fish producers' cooperatives. Some of the activities of the fishermen's unions, which include boat operators among their membership, are in the nature of fishery cooperative marketing and have been considered as such by Federal courts[2].

There is also available Fishery Leaflet 293, List of Fishermen's and Fish Shore Workers' Unions in the United States, which includes only trade unions.

Created in 1849, the Department of the Interior--a department of conservation--is concerned with the management, conservation, and development of the Nation's water, fish, wildlife, mineral, forest, and park and recreational resources. It also has major responsibilities for Indian and Territorial affairs.

As the Nation's principal conservation agency, the Department works to assure that nonrenewable resources are developed and used wisely, that park and recreational resources are conserved for the future, and that renewable resources make their full contribution to the progress, prosperity, and security of the United States--now and in the future.
